Letter

Dear Investor

We are pleased to present you with this offer to invest in the Collins St Special Situation Fund No.1 (Fund). The Fund is a sector specific, long only, equities managed fund which seeks to create strong investment returns from the global oil and gas services sector over the investment term (expected to be three years), with capital preservation a priority. We focus on identifying deep value investment opportunities in the global oil and gas services sector which are trading at a discount to our assessment of value. We believe that there are opportunities in the global oil and gas services sector in which we can achieve strong returns.

The trustee of the Fund and issuer of the Units in the Fund is Collins St Finance Pty Ltd (CSF), an authorised representative of Collins St Asset Management Pty Ltd (CSAM). The directors of CSAM have significant experience in analysing and investing in listed securities.

The Fund is open to persons considered “wholesale clients” under Section s761G of the Act.

A key feature of the Fund is its fee structure. No ongoing management fee is payable to CSF or CSAM. The managers of the Fund receive fees based solely on performance of the Fund.

The performance fee incentivises the Fund managers to add value for investors.

We encourage you to review the IM and discuss the opportunity with your adviser/s.

2. Investment Details

2.1 Investment Objective

The Fund seeks to create strong investment returns over the investment term (expected to be three years) with capital preservation a priority.

2.2 The Opportunity

Collins St Finance Pty Ltd (CSF) is pleased to present a unique, one-off opportunity to invest in a basket of listed global securities that operate in the oil and gas services sector. The Fund will take a high conviction approach and invest in a breed of listed global securities that CSF believes are materially undervalued by the market relative to CSF's short to medium term outlook for the global oil and gas services sector.

In our view, securities listed on the Australian Securities Exchange do not provide sufficient opportunity for exposure to the global oil and gas services sector. CSF has undertaken extensive due diligence on the sector in Australia and internationally. Based on that research, it is expected that the vast majority if not all investment by the Fund will occur on stock exchanges in Western Europe and North America.

Applications and redemptions in the Fund will be made in Australian currency. As the Fund will invest on foreign stock exchanges, it will need to convert application moneys into the currency of the exchange on which it is investing. When it sells an investment and seeks to return the moneys by redemption or to invest in a different jurisdiction, it will need to convert the sale proceeds either to Australian currency or the currency of the new jurisdiction in which it wishes to invest. There will be foreign currency exposure risk in all of these transactions. The Fund will not enter into hedging arrangement to manage this risk.

We consider that the oil sector, especially the offshore oil services sector, has been out of favour in recent years. In addition, a combination of fluctuating oil prices, political pressure to reduce fossil fuels, and a misunderstanding /overestimation of the alternatives have seen oil companies cutting their expenditure relating to oil exploration and production, especially offshore production.

Our analysis indicates that offshore oil accounts for close to half of the world's oil reserves. Despite continued base demand, oil and gas exploration has substantially declined since 2014. This has been driven by the reasons outlined above as well as fluctuations in oil prices and the growth of US shale. However, shale deposits are quickly depleted (on average at a rate of approximately 70% p.a.). This depletion rate compares poorly to offshore oil reserves (which deplete on average at a rate of approximately 10% p.a.).

In our view, an analysis of the opportunity in the oil sector should be focussed on oil supply rather than demand. Even if oil demand falls significantly from present levels (which CSF is not predicting to occur in the short to medium term) the reduction in current and expected future supply has been so great that a lack of supply will mean that oil prices will likely remain elevated.

CSF is cognisant of the arguments for a reduction in the demand for oil, with the most common reason being the move to electric vehicles (EVs). On our analysis, even a complete shift from combustion engine vehicles to EVs would only reduce oil demand by 15% by 2030. CSF does not anticipate such a significant shift in the near term. However, in the unlikely event that a complete global transition occurs by 2030, CSF believes that the market has underestimated the quantum of oil used in plastics and industrial production.

CSF believes that there is the opportunity to achieve significant investment returns in the oil and gas services sector. Due to the growth in US shale over the last decade, which in our view is now peaking, many North American and European offshore oil service-related companies have merged with competitors or have required corporate restructuring and/or a recapitalisation. In our view, many of those companies with strong balance sheets are well placed to capitalise on meeting ongoing demand. Our analysis suggests there is a significant disconnect between the share prices of many offshore oil and gas services companies and their prospects for earnings. This is especially so in those companies that restructured their balance sheet.

CSF believes this investment will provide asymmetric returns due to the downside risk being mitigated by the value of the hard assets (some trading at 10% to 20% of replacement costs) of these companies.

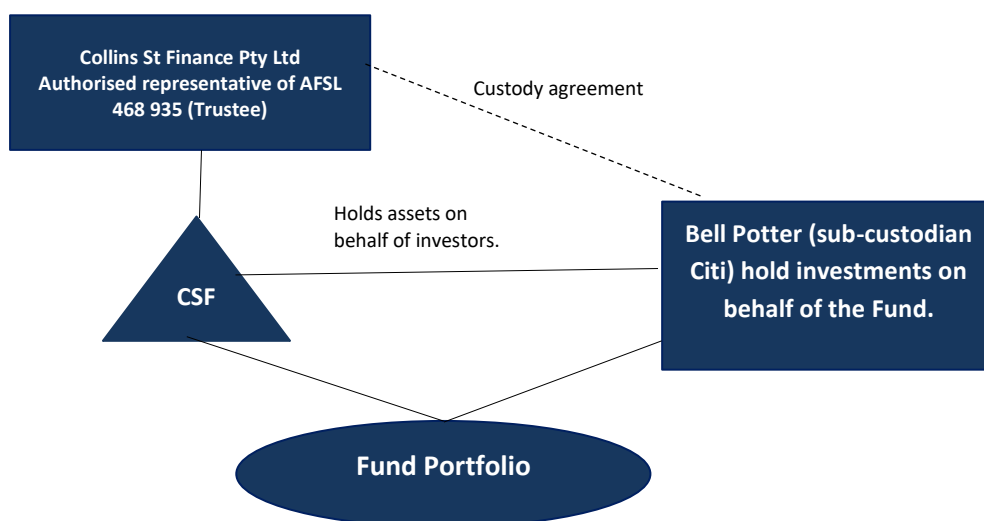

Investors and management of the Fund have aligned interests. This is achieved by implementing a zero ongoing management fee structure with the only fee being a performance fee payable upon the redemption of Units.

The trustee for the Fund is CSF, which is an authorised representative of CSAM. CSAM holds Australian Financial Services Licence 468935. CSF is authorised to operate the Fund. CSF's offices are located in Suite 903, 365 Little Collins St, Melbourne, Victoria.

There is no minimum or maximum number of Units to be issued in the Fund. There is no buy / sell spread applying to this offer (see section 6.5). The minimum initial investment is $1 million (subject to variation at the absolute discretion of CSAM). The Fund is closed ended and is expected to be wound up on or before the third anniversary of the issue of the Units (subject to extensions).

2.3 Trust Structure

The Fund is an unlisted unit trust. The Fund is not registered with ASIC. CSF is the trustee of the Fund.

2.4 Investment Strategy

CSF believes that investment returns are enhanced when fund managers properly understand the particulars and sector dynamics of the companies in which they have invested.

The investment team will assess the attractiveness of potential investments using a number of common industry based measures, a proprietary in-house model and by speaking with management, industry experts and competitors. Once the managers form a view that an investment offers sufficient upside potential relative to the downside risk, the Fund seeks to make an investment. The investment may be executed by way of an acquisition of shares on or off market, participation in a placement or other share issue or by purchasing a debt instrument issued by the relevant entity that is convertible into equity.

The managers of the Fund intend to maintain a concentrated portfolio of investments in companies in the global oil and gas services sector that they have investigated and consider to be undervalued.

The Fund endeavours not to allow a single position to represent a stake so great as to single handedly dictate the overall viability of the Fund. The managers have implemented procedures to assist in achieving this outcome.

2.5 Investment Term, Redemptions and Exit Fee

The Fund is closed-ended.

The investment term is expected to be three years. The investment term may be less than three years if CFS believes that it is in the interests of investors to end the investment term earlier. CSF may, in its absolute discretion, extend the term of the Fund for a further one year if it considers that the Fund's investment objectives are more likely to be met with that extension.

If CSF wishes to extend the term for longer than four years, the Fund will first offer each investor the opportunity to redeem their Units.

The terms of redemption will allow for the orderly sell down of the Fund's investments to meet redemption requests.

Other than as set out above, redemptions may not be submitted during the life of the Fund. All Units will be redeemed at the end of the investment term.

CSF retains absolute discretion to suspend or delay redemptions beyond the fourth year anniversary of the issue of Units if it believes such suspension or delay is necessary.

CSF may wind up the Fund following a determination by CSF that it is the optimal time for this to occur. However, to complete this in an orderly manner, CSF may give effect to the redemption process by treating it as a series of smaller redemptions over a number of weeks or months.

2.6 Debt

The Fund does not include gearing in its structure. However, many or perhaps all of the companies that the Funds will invest in will have debt on their balance sheet.

The Fund will consider the extent of such debt in determining whether to invest in those companies. We generally prefer to invest in companies with minimal debt on their balance sheet.

2.7 Distribution Policy

The Fund intends to notionally distribute to investors (by book entry) any distributions received by the Fund from the companies in which it is invested. However, all such distributions will be subject to compulsory reinvestment in the Fund.

Each time there is a notional distribution, CSF will calculate the price of Units and each recipient of a distribution will be taken to have applied for Units at that price in the amount of the distribution.

Distributions are intended to be calculated and paid annually.

2.8 Applications

The Offer opens on the date of this IM and remains open until determined by CSF in its absolute discretion. Applications will not be accepted after the initial raising is completed.

The minimum initial subscription amount is $1 million. However, CSF retains absolute discretion to alter minimum subscription amounts. To invest in the Fund, initial investors must complete and sign the Fund application form and return it to Collins St Finance, Suite 903, 365 Little Collins St, Melbourne 3000. CSF retains the discretion to reject an application for Units without giving a reason.

Investors need to meet CSF's application requirements including identification of the investor for the purposes of meeting our obligations under Australian law in respect of terrorism financing and money laundering.

All investors investing directly into the Fund will receive an investment confirmation following the issue of their Units.

2.9 Wholesale clients

Units will be issued only to investors under this IM who qualify as "wholesale clients"

An investor is generally a "wholesale client" for the purposes of the Act, where any one of the following applies:

- (a) the investor's investment is $500,000 or more;
- (b) the investor provides an accountant's certificate stating that the investor has net assets of at least $2.5 million or has earned at least $250,000 in each of the last two financial years;
- (c) the investor is a "professional investor" (including those that hold an Australian Financial Services Licence, are APRA regulated or have at least $10 million worth of assets); or
- (d) CSF is satisfied on reasonable grounds that the investor has suitable previous experience in financial products, subject to certain conditions.

By lodging an application form in respect of the Offer of Units contained in this IM you declare and warrant to CSF that you are and will remain a wholesale client within the meaning of Section 761G of the Act.

3. Benefits and Risks

- (b) The Fund has experienced managers with almost 60 years of combined investing experience.
- (c) The Fund managers have a proprietary investment selection process that they have used over many years.
- (d) The Fund managers have a strong track record of identifying investment opportunities.
- (e) The Fund managers have a strong record of regulatory compliance, corporate governance and risk management.
- (f) A unique investment opportunity to invest in a materially undervalued sector.

3.2 Risks

Like any investment, there are risks associated with investing in the Fund. By nature, the risks associated with investments in securities cannot be exhaustively listed. Every investment is influenced by many factors that can affect both its value and the income it produces. Each investment can decline as well as increase in value. Many risk factors fall outside our control and cannot be completely mitigated.

The following is a non-exhaustive list of some risks associated with investment in the Fund. You should consider and weigh them up carefully and make your own assessment in respect of them and where necessary seek professional advice.

Investors should be aware that there is no guarantee that the implementation of the investment objective or process will not result in losses to the investors. Income distributions are not guaranteed, and neither is the return of capital.

- (a) Currency exchange risk: Exchange rates between the Australian dollar and foreign currencies change. This can affect the performance of securities and assets held by the Fund. The Fund invests in securities issued by entities listed on the stock exchanges in Western Europe and North America. To purchase those securities, the Fund will need to convert the funds that it holds into the currency of the exchange in which it seeks to invest. It will need to convert those moneys back into Australian currency when the Units are to be redeemed. Further, CSF may wish to change an investment by selling securities on one exchange and buying securities on a different exchange that trades in a different currency. To do that, it will need to purchase the currency of the exchange on which it wishes to invest. In addition, these securities may be in companies operating in various other jurisdictions and therefore directly exposed to currency fluctuations in those jurisdictions in the course of their operations. In each of these instances, the Fund will be exposed to exchange rate risk.

- (b) Changes in global economic conditions: A downturn or general change in the economy may negatively affect the value of securities held by the Fund and therefore the value of Units.
- (c) Industry risk: There is a risk that the particular industry in which the Fund has invested (intended to be the oil services industry) may perform poorly or suffer a downturn due to global or local factors or changes to government policy in one or more jurisdiction. There can be no guarantee that losses equivalent to or greater than the overall industry will not be incurred as a result of investing in the industry.
- (d) Concentration Risk: The Fund is likely to hold a concentrated portfolio of securities. The relatively small number of investments means that a significant decline in the price of a security may have a material impact on the unit price of the Fund and therefore the value of Units.
- (e) Variations in certain global stock market conditions including the value and demand for listed securities: Any downturn in the securities market in general may affect the resale value of the securities held by the Fund.
- (f) Changes in the law: Changes in government policy and legislation including changes to the environmental laws, taxation systems, securities law or laws relating to certain overseas jurisdictions or the management of managed investment schemes within Australia may affect the financial performance of the Fund.
- (g) Inflation and interest rate risk: Fluctuations in inflation and interest rates may affect the income and resale value of the securities held by the Fund and therefore the value of the Fund's investment in those securities.
- (h) Natural disasters, social unrest, pandemics and terrorist attacks: These events may occur throughout the world and, in particular in locations in which companies in which the Fund has invested operates and may affect the income and resale value of the securities held by the Fund and therefore the value of the Fund's investment in those securities.
- (i) Security specific risk: An investment in a company's securities may be affected by unexpected changes in that company's operations (such as changes in management or the loss of a key customer) and change in business environment.
- (j) Small and medium capitalisation company risk: Whilst it is expected that most investments will be made in listed companies with a market capitalisation in excess of US$500 million, it is possible that some of the opportunities may be smaller listed companies. Securities in these companies may trade less frequently and may experience greater price volatility than larger companies. Smaller capitalisation companies may also have more limited operating histories, markets, product lines or financial resources than larger companies. They may also depend heavily on key personnel.

- (k) Liquidity risk: There is the risk that a security may not easily be convertible into cash without a loss of capital or a significant delay.
- (l) Market risk: Investment in a specific group of securities is exposed to the universal risks of the securities market. However, there can be no guarantee that losses equivalent to or greater than the overall market will not be incurred as a result of investing in such securities.
- (m) Personnel risk: The risk that people key to the management of the Fund become unable or unavailable to perform their role.
- (n) Taxation: The Fund is a unit trust. Taxation law is constantly evolving and being amended. Changes to taxation legislation may impact adversely on an investment in the Fund. Investors are advised to obtain their own professional taxation advice. While the Fund expects to be treated as a tax flow through entity, there is a risk that it will be taxed as a company. The AMIT regime (see section 7) may qualify this risk but there is Fund may not be an Attribution Managed Investment Trust. Further, distributions made by the Fund during the investment term must be reinvested. To implement this, the Fund will not actually pay out the distributions. Rather, the Fund will record distributions and reinvestments by book entry. Investors will need to fund any tax payable on those distributions. As is the case with the funds invested on the initial application for Units, there is no guaranteed return on the funds that are distributed and reinvested. Those funds may not achieve any return and the return of the capital is not guaranteed.
- (o) Disputes and defaults: The Fund may be involved in disputes and possible litigation with counterparties or services providers. There exists a risk that a material or costly dispute or litigation could affect the amount of expected income of the Fund.
- (p) Counterparty risk: Counterparty risk is the risk of loss caused by another party defaulting on its financial obligations either because it becomes insolvent or cannot otherwise meet its obligations to the Fund. A party defaulting on its obligations could subject the Fund to substantial losses because the Fund will still be required to fulfil its obligations on any transactions which were to have substantially offset other contracts.
- (q) Debt instruments: The Fund may invest in debt instruments that are convertible into equity which are issued by listed entities. There can be no guarantee that the issuer of the instrument will be able to pay any or all of the coupon payments or the principal (if the instrument is not converted into equity before its expiry). Further, there is no guarantee that the price at which the shares in the issuer of the instrument trade on the relevant stock exchange will be greater than the price at which shares in the entity will be issued to the Fund if an election is made by the Fund to convert the debt instrument into equity.

5. Investment Process

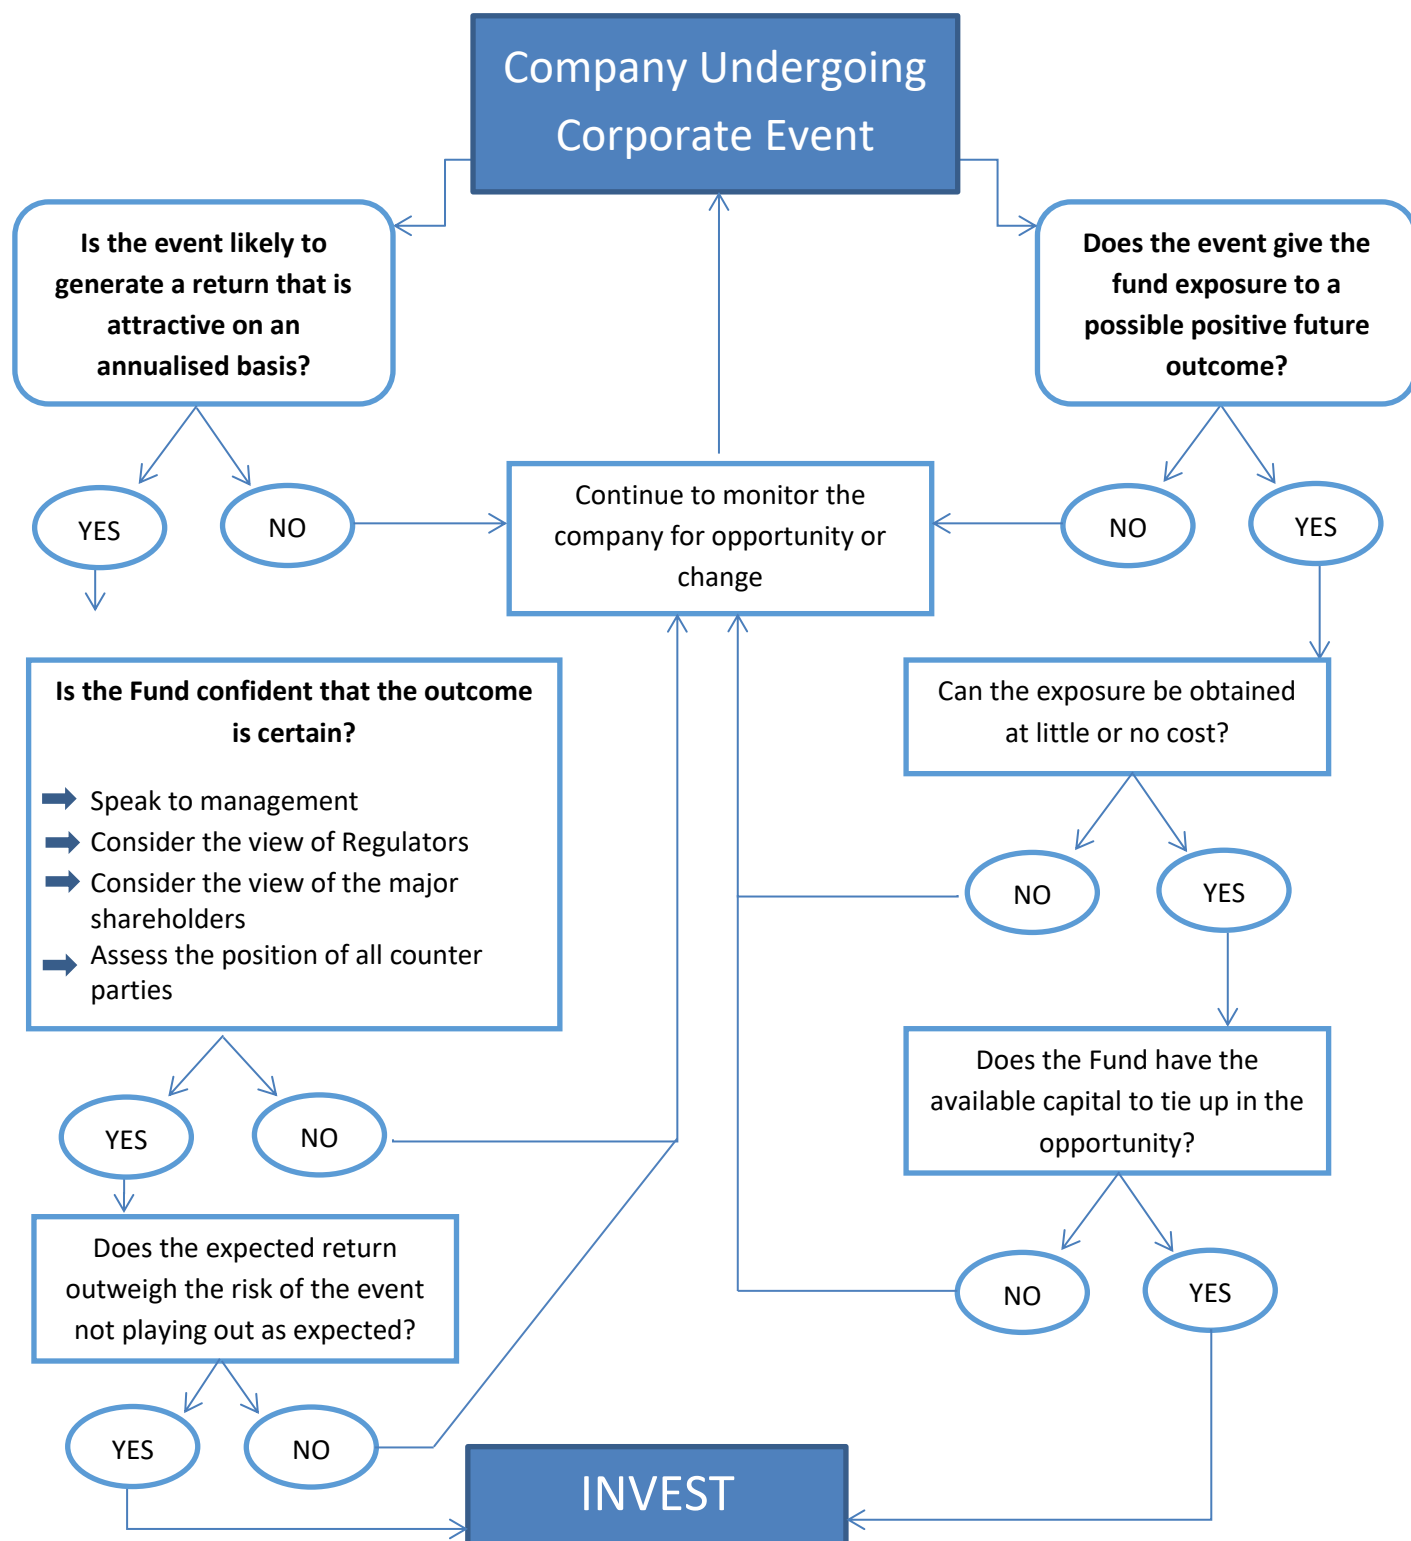

CSF will seek to invest in businesses in the oil services industry that the managers consider to be trading at a discount to their assessment of underlying value. To achieve this goal, the managers have an ever-evolving watch list of companies that they consider interesting but overvalued investment grade businesses.

Using the above-mentioned watch list as a basis for analysis the managers keep a close watch to determine when those businesses also become, in their view, strong investment prospects.

From time to time the Fund may find special situations that allows the Fund to invest in companies that may provide more certain returns over a short period of time or allow the Fund to gain exposure to a possible future return at little risk to the Fund. These types of situations generally arise out of one off corporate events or restructurings and may include: special dividends, cash takeovers, buy backs, capital returns or scrip bids.

Though the net returns on some of these opportunities may be small, the relative certainty of the outcome, and the relatively short time frame involved can make these opportunities an attractive option for the Fund.

6.2 Additional explanation of fees and costs

6.2.1 Ongoing fees and costs

These fees and costs are paid by the Fund and therefore indirectly by Unitholders in proportion to their investment in the Fund. If CSF or a related party is liable to pay GST on any fees charged to the Fund, CSF is entitled to be reimbursed by the Fund for the GST liability.

Ongoing administration costs

The Fund incurs administration costs such as broking fees, audit fees, custodial costs, compliance costs, accounting, tax, legal advice, bank charges, printing and stationery costs, and postage and handling fees.

Performance fee

CSF is entitled to be paid a performance fee at the end of the investment term, as defined in Section 2.5. The performance fee is 25% of the growth in the Fund since the date of issue of the initial Units. CSF believes that this performance fee structure fully aligns the interests of investors in the Fund with its managers and is appropriate having regard to the Fund's mandate for capital preservation and growth.

The performance fee is payable at the end of the investment term, prior to the distribution of returns to investors and the wind up of the Fund.

Performance fee examples

These examples are provided for information only to illustrate the calculation of the performance fee. They do not take into account any fees other than the performance fee. They also do not take into account taxes that are required to be paid by the Fund or any Unitholder. Actual results may vary significantly from this example. Further examples may be obtained from CSF.

Example 1: - No distributions are made

Assume the following:

- CSF issues 20 million Units at $1.00 per Unit to raise $20 million.
- At the end of the investment term the value of the Fund is $30 million.
- No distributions are made during the investment term, so the number of Units on issue remain at 20 million.

The value of the Fund is $10 million greater than the initial subscription monies received. Accordingly, the performance fee will be $2.5 million (25% of that $10 million) (excluding GST).

The remaining $7.5 million (75% of that $10 million) of performance will be distributed to investors together with their original investment of $20 million. That is, the balance of the Fund of $27.5 million will be paid to Unitholders.

Example 2: - Distributions are made, which are reinvested, and Fund performance is strong

Assume the following:

- At inception of the Fund CSF issues 20 million Units at $1.00 per Unit to raise $20 million.
- During the investment term, the Fund distributes $1 million which must be reinvested in full.
- The reinvestment of the $1 million is undertaken by the issue of new Units. If we assume that the value of the Fund has doubled at the time of the distribution (and subsequent reinvestment) then the $1 million will be reinvested by way of an issue of 500,000 Units at a subscription price of $2.00 per Unit.
- At the end of the investment term the value of the Fund is $32 million and there are 20,500,000 Units on issue (20 million initial Units and 500,000 Units issued on reinvestment).

As the value of the Fund has increased by $12 million from the initial investment amount, the performance fee will be $3 million (25% of $12 million) (excluding GST). The remaining $9 million (75% of $12 million) of performance will be distributed to investors together with the original investment of $20 million. That is, the balance of the Fund of $29 million will be paid to Unitholders.

Example 3: - Distributions are made, which are reinvested, and Fund performance is moderate

Assume the following:

- At inception of the Fund CSF issues 20 million Units at $1.00 per Unit to raise $20 million.
- During the investment term, the Fund distributes $1 million which must be reinvested in full.
- The reinvestment of the $1 million is undertaken by the issue of new Units. If we assume that the value of the Fund has doubled at the time of the distribution (and subsequent reinvestment) then the $1 million will be reinvested by way of an issue of 500,000 Units at a subscription price of $2.00 per Unit.
- At the end of the investment term the value of the Fund is $21 million and there are 20,500,000 Units on issue (20 million initial Units and 500,000 Units issued on reinvestment).

As the value of the Fund has increased by $1 million from the initial investment amount, the performance fee will be $250,000 (25% of $1 million) (excluding GST). The remaining $750,000 (75% of $1 million) of performance will be distributed to investors together with the original investment of $20 million. That is, the balance of the Fund of $20,750,000 million will be paid to Unitholders.

Example 4: - Distributions are made, which are reinvested, and there is no Fund performance

Assume the following:

- At inception of the Fund CSF issues 20 million Units at $1.00 per Unit to raise $20 million.

- During the investment term, the Fund distributes $1 million which must be reinvested in full.
- The reinvestment of the $1 million is undertaken by the issue of new Units. If we assume that the value of the Fund has doubled at the time of the distribution (and subsequent reinvestment) then the $1 million will be reinvested by way of an issue of 500,000 Units at a subscription price of $2.00 per Unit.
- At the end of the investment term the value of the Fund is $20 million and there are 20,500,000 Units on issue (20 million initial Units and 500,000 Units issued on reinvestment).

As the value of the Fund has not increased, no performance fee will be payable. The $20 million will be distributed back to Unitholders.

Termination / Removal fee

Should investors in the Fund vote to remove CSF as trustee of the Fund, CSF will require payment of any costs it has previously incurred and an amount equivalent to the performance fee that would have been payable if the assets of the Fund were sold on the date CSF ceases to be trustee and all Units redeemed. No other removal or termination fee will be payable.

Abnormal expenses

CSF is entitled to be reimbursed from the Fund for abnormal expenses, such as the cost of Unitholder meetings, legal costs of any proceedings involving the Fund and terminating the Fund. Whilst it is not possible to estimate such expenses with certainty, CSF anticipates that the events that give rise to such expenses will rarely occur.

Reimbursement of costs

Under the Fund's trust deed CSF is entitled to be reimbursed for all expenses and liabilities (which may include the ongoing administration costs and abnormal expenses referred to above) which it may incur in the proper performance of its duties as trustee. These expenses include but are not limited to:

- costs, charges and expenses of establishing the Fund and the trust deed including the preparation, due diligence, registration, promotion and distribution of any disclosure document in respect of the Fund;
- costs, charges and expenses incurred in connection with the acquisition of any assets of the Fund (including any stamp duty payable in accordance with the law);
- costs, charges and expenses of maintaining or improving any assets of the Fund;
- fees and expenses charged by brokers or other participants in the equities market such as prime brokers or other brokers;
- fees and expenses of the auditors;
- fees and expenses of any consultant or other expert employed by the Fund;
- costs of convening and holding any meeting of investors;
- expenses incurred in connection with the keeping and maintaining of accounting and financial records and registers including the register of Unitholders;
- costs, charges and expenses and disbursements paid or payable to the custodian; and
- any costs incurred in connection with the issue of Units.

6.3 Waiver or Deferral of Fees

CSF may at its discretion:

- partially or fully waive any fees or costs to which it is entitled: or
- defer its entitlement to fees or costs to which it would otherwise be entitled and may claim these if it is removed as trustee of the Fund.

6.4 Other Payments

CSF or its related entities may pay a fee to third parties who introduce new investors to the Fund. In instances where this occurs, there is no additional cost to investors. Any fee of this type will be paid from CSF's own funds.

6.5 Goods and Services Tax

All the fees in the above table are expressed as excluding GST.

6.6 Buy / Sell Spread

There is no buy / sell spread applicable to the Fund.

7. Taxation Information

Taxation rules are complex and different investors have different circumstances. Therefore, you should seek professional taxation advice prior to making an investment decision. CSF does not know the individual taxation position of any Unitholders and cannot take any such circumstances into account in making decisions regarding the operation of the Fund and the investments made by CSF.

The Fund is a trust and is expected to be treated as a flow through vehicle for income tax purposes. Accordingly, Unitholders will be taxed on their proportionate share of the taxable income of the Fund. In some circumstances, you may qualify for a discount on certain taxable capital gains made by the Fund.

If you dispose of your Units (e.g. by way of sale or redemption) you may be required to pay capital gains tax. Depending on your situation you may qualify for a discount on certain taxable capital gains. When you redeem Units, CSF may make a special distribution to you of some or all of the funds to which you would become entitled in respect of the redemption.

A new attribution managed investment trust (AMIT) regime has been introduced. Broadly, the taxation treatment of Unitholders and the Fund would be the same under the AMIT regime as compared to the current income tax regime. However, the AMIT regime has been enacted to provide more certainty regarding the taxation treatment of both the Unitholders and the Fund.

It is at the discretion of trustees of the relevant trust to determine if the AMIT regime should apply. A trustee of a qualifying managed investment trust (MIT) for income tax purposes is entitled to elect for the AMIT regime to apply to the MIT where the members of the scheme have clearly defined interests in relation to the income and capital of the MIT.

Under the AMIT regime, an MIT that is entitled to participate in the regime and that has made an election to do so, must attribute the taxable income of the scheme to members on a fair and reasonable basis consistent with their interests in the scheme.

The Trust Deed permits the Fund to elect to participate in the AMIT regime. The Trustee has not yet determined whether it will or is able to make an election to have the AMIT regime apply to the Fund.

- the right to attend and vote at meetings of investors.
- the right to participate in the proceeds of winding up of the Fund.

The trust deed contains provisions about convening and conducting meetings of Unitholders.

CSF can amend the trust deed without Unitholders' approval provided CSF reasonably considers the changes will not adversely affect Unitholders' rights as a whole. The trust deed can also be amended by special resolution passed by investors with a 75% approval by value of Units voted at the meeting.

Under the trust deed, CSF is able to issue Units in different classes having preferential rights and may vary or cancel the rights and privileges attached to Units in different classes, including by converting or reclassifying Units from one class to another. CSF may also, in its absolute discretion, cancel Units and issue replacement units of a different class.

The trustee may retire as the trustee of the Fund with one month's notice to investors. The trustee may be removed as trustee of the Fund by a resolution passed by at least 90% of votes of all Units.

A copy of the trust deed is available free of charge from CSF's registered office.
